WJ 2021 Camp Announced - New podcast out today

Hello World Juniors 2020 tour members and priority list members,

It's early November, and here in Alberta, you can feel that winter is on the way. Any recent light snowfall has been melting but that chill in the air is a reminder that soon it will be here to stay. It's an exciting time of year as we start to count down the days until the holidays. As I was thinking of the holidays it brought back great memories of Prague and the lively Christmas market and the huge festive tree in the Old Town Square. It's always a great experience for me to see how people in other countries celebrate Christmas.

Christmas also means the World Juniors will soon be on our tv's. Here is some information to get you set for the tournament.

WJ 2021 Information

Team Canada announced the selection camp invites for their camp in Red Deer, Alberta from November 17 to December 13. With the NHL start an uncertainty I expect that other players will be added to the invite list including the NY Rangers' 2020 first overall pick and WJ2020 star Alexis Lafreniere. All teams in the tournament will be bolstered by having NHL players available to them and Canada should have one of its strongest teams ever. It will be a great tournament to watch over the holidays.

They have also released the schedule for the 2021 World Juniors which will be held in a bubble in Edmonton starting on Christmas Day. Canada's first game is on Boxing Day against Germany who has recently been producing some great players. Click below for links to see all the information.

Bryn says 'Thanks'... 2020 was an interesting year... and scary.

Our friend Bryn Griffiths shares history about the health issues that he faced during the tour and then that escalated quickly after our return. It's a great listen. Sorry about some audio issues we had with my mic in this episode.

Our WJ2023 and WJ2024 preview podcast will be released next week so be sure to subscribe to the RSS feed on the podcast page to receive our podcasts automatically as they are released.
